AFRICA'S GROWING INTEREST IN AYURVEDA

The African continent has witnessed a surge in interest in Ayurveda in recent years. The natural and non-invasive nature of Ayurvedic treatments, combined with its effectiveness in managing various health conditions, has contributed to its popularity among African communities.

The recent visit of 15 African ambassadors to the AIIA OPD underscores the growing global recognition of Ayurveda as a holistic healthcare system. As more nations seek alternative and holistic approaches to wellness, Ayurveda's influence is poised to expand even further across continents.

The trade chambers/associations in Ghana and India have over the years maintain good relations and mount business delegations from time to time. The Ghana – India Trade Advisory can play very important role in helping Indian Ayurveda to lay a foundation in Ghana and can also help in getting wide publicity to this trade expo.

Also, apart from Agro, Pharma and Power & Energy, the Ayurveda & Wellness will also get a chance to foray in this market.
